

Docubee: An Electronic Signature Solution for Lawyers

The Common Challenge

While most law professionals already have an eSignature solution in place, getting signatures on documents like client intake, NDAs, financial affidavits, and whatever else your firm works on is still a struggle. Some solutions can be great for collecting a signature, however, they can often fall short when it comes to automating the before and after steps of getting a document signed.

Things like manual follow-up on documents waiting to be signed, post-signing document storage and routing documents to the correct parties after a signing ceremony, all add extra steps and confusion for everyone involved. Finding a solution that does all of this and also plays nicely with your CRM can be frustrating. But, we guarantee that there's a better way to collect eSignatures.

How Docubee Simplifies eSignatures for Legal Professionals

Docubee offers secure, legally binding signatures that go beyond the signing ceremony, allowing you to automate your legal documents from start to finish. Docubee comes with automated email routing to notify all parties when it's time to sign and when signing is complete, plus built-in reminders and follow-ups. With the help of Docubee, you can modernize and make collecting signatures easier for all parties involved.
